says. 'This evil was not falement in the construction of trasex: and hence the raised circula proper adaptation, pressure to close hernial opening, and tends to close and cure the hernia."

the Baltimore General Dispensary, nication to Doctor Hull, says: 1 your trusses in several hundred the last three years. A great of long standing, where all other failed. I send you a note of thanks a citizen of greate respectability, red of a bad scrotal rupture, of care in less than two years - labouring man, thirty years old. on alone, can make known to the Surpowers and excellence of these Your trusses are exclusively the Professors in both of the Medi in this city, and the Faculty in gene Mott. M. D. Professor of Surge The great and signal benefits which ed by this Truss, result from its nd Surgical principles.

reverse of all Trusses heretofore ch being convex tended to enlarge atructure in this instrument relong been the desideratum of Prace one in Europe and America.'

Mott also in lecturing upon Hermende Dr. Hull's Truss to the exly at the office of Dr. KNAPP, 57.

eet, east of Monument Square, Balnmenced the Season, and will pursue toutes in the following manner:

MARYLAND

ton every Wednesday and Siturday to o'clock, and proceed to Camil thence to Annapolia, and thence to where she will arrive in the evening timore, from the Tounce Inspection wharf, every Thesday and Friday 7 o'clock, and proceed to Annapote Cambridge, if there should be say on beard for that place, and thence or directly to Easton, if no passensanbridge.

six a clock for Chestertown, calling pany's what on Corsica creek, and from Chestertown to Baltimore the from Chestertown to Baltimore the calling at the wharf on Corsica age and Packages to be at the risk LEMURL & TAYLOR SOM

The state of the s

VOL. LXXXV.

ANNAPOLIS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1830.

NO. 47.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY JONAS GREEN. Church-Street, Annapolis, MICE TURES DOLLARS PER ANNUM.

BOOKS JUST RECEIVED hanthe N. York Protestant Episcopal Press, AND FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE. he Fimily Visiter; $1.25 w Waterland, on Regeneration & Justification, 25

m Waterland, on Regeneration & Justification, whishop King, on the Invention of Men in the Watship of God,
Jars Essy on Jin Church,
Bearw', Destrine of the Sacraments,
Tolori Answer to the Question, Why are you a Charchenen,
Tolory Candid Examination of the Episcopal Charch.

Cherch, perinstions on the Liturgy, by Rev. P. Davys, 2. Letter from a Blacksmith, Letter from a Blacksmith, List Day of the Week,
List Week,
List Breggre, hy Mrs. Sherwood,
List Breggre, hy Mrs. Sherwood,
List Weller, Pamily,
Locatiation, by Mrs. Sherwood,
Listy School Tracts, Vol. I, and II,
Lettler, Daughter,
List Finisful Little Girl,
List Amiversary Book, or a story about William Lists and and Charles Curran,
Lettler, List Lister Company
Lettler, List Lister Company
Lettler, Lister Company
Lettler, Lister Company
Lettler, Lister Company
Lettler, Lister Company
Lister Lister Com

Biret llome, To Two Mothers or Memoirs the last century, This for Youth, (Frank & George, & Christmas

Jone Devotor, Jose and Esther Hall, by Mrs. Cameron, Gloin's Monument of Parental Affection, The Sailor Bay, Beaplared Negro, by Mrs. Sherwood, The Lahrador Missionaries, The Lahrador Missionaries, Defic's Sermons for Children, May and Jane, a Dialogue, by Mrs. Cameron, May and Jane, a Dialogue, by Mrs. Carr A family in Eternity, The Baptism, A father's Narrative of his Courcesion, Pork-t Praver Book, written by itself, Life of Moses, Esay of Robert Jones. , J. T. keeps FOR SALE.

BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER, EPISCOPAL CATECHISMS, and

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOOKS. He receives Subscriptions for the CHIL DREN'S MAGAZINE, and the FAMILY FISITER; also for STANDARD WORKS the Protestant Episcopal Church; the First folame of which is receive JOHN THOMPSON.

October 14, 1830.

JUST RECEIVED

from the N. York Protestant Episcopal Press THE LIFE OF BISHOP HEBER,

In Two Volumes.
FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

PARSH FALL & WIN'LER GOODS. GEORGE M'NEIR. MERCHANT TAILOR Has just returned from Philadelphia and Baltimore, with a LARGE STOCK OF GOODS Patent Finished Cloth CASSIMERES & VESTINGS mable to the season, which he respectfully in ites his friends to call and examine.

All of which he will make up at the shortest beice, and in the nost FASHIONALISM of the cash, or to punctual men only. e, and in the nost PASHIONABLE STYLE,

WILLIAM BRYAN, MURCHANT TAILOR as just received a large and very handsome assortment of

CLOTHS. Cassimeres and Vestings, Of Various Qualities and Colours,

ANN KARNEY

DESPECTIVILLY informs the citizens of Annapolis, and its vicinity, that she has be tade fire assoriment of

RIBBONS,

AND ALSO A SELECTION OF Omstable Leghorn and Split Straw Bonnets

the has likewise a quantity of Legnoria that the perpete of altering Legiorn Bonnets into the perpete of altering Legiorn Bonnets into the period fastion. She returns her thanks to the politic in general, for their former patricipals and respectfully asked continuation

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LEGACY OF THE ROSES. The following fine verses are by Miss Landon, and ar founded on the feet reported by Mr. Crofton Crook er, that a person who died at Barnes, left an annual sum to be loid out in roses planted on his grave Oh? plant them above me, the soft, the bright,
The touched with the sunset's crimson light,
The warm with the earliest breath of spring.
The sweet with the sween of the west wind's wing:
Let the green bough and the red leaf ware—
Plant the glad rose tree upon my grave.

Why should the mournful willow weep J'er the quiet rest of a dreamless sleep? Weep for life, with its toil and care, its crime to shun, and its sorrow to bear; Let tears and the a gus of tears be shed Over the living, not over the dead. Plant not the express nor yet the yew; Too heavy their shadow, too gloomy their For one who sleeping in faith and in love, ith a hope that is treasured in heaven above: Cast ye no darkness, throw ve no shade.

VISIT TO AN ARAB HAREM.

Narrative of a journey overland from England, by the Continent of Europe, Egypt, and the Red Sea, to India, including a residence there, and voyage home; in the years 1825, 26, 27, 28. By Mrs. Col. Elimwood.

Having landed at the port of Hodeida, Mrs. Elmwood had an opportunity of visiting an Arab Harem, and as her account of the ladies is the most amusing thing in the book, (Vol I.) we shall content ourselves with extracting it. "In C-- 's absence I always remained in on my terrace to enjoy the fresh sea-breeze which was just setting in, a casement which which has just setting in, a casement which I had never before observed slowly opened, and a black hand appeared waving significantly at me. Impressed with some degree of fear, I immediately retreated, but on looking again the wavering was repeated, and several women peeping out, beckoned me to them, making signs that all the men were out of the way. Whilst I was hesitating, a negro woman and a boy came out upon another terrace, and vehemently importuned me by signs to go to them. I had just been reading Ludy Mathematical and the signs of a Turkish ry W. Montague's description of a Turkish harem, an opportunity might never again oc-cur of visiting an Arab one. After some conflict between my fears and my curiosity, the latter conquered, and down I went, the boy neeting me at the foot of the stairs, and lifta number of women's slippers, & inside were about a dozen females clothed in silk trowsers, vest closely fitting the figure, and fastened in front, and turbans very tastefully put on the mosque, from whence the Doxlah was just the mosque the n seemed much to astonish them, as they tom seemed much to astonish them, as they could not discover their use. They asked me the names of every thing I had on, and when, to please them, I took off my cap, and let down my long hair, Zaccara, following my example, immediately took off her turban and shewed me here's the nearn woman, who seemed the with my long hair, Zaccara, following my care my long hair, Zaccara, following my care my long hair with a mean time holding up the lace cap upon her broad fat hand, and exhibiting it to all around, apparently with great admiration, exclaiming 'cap, cap,' and also endeavouring, much to their detriment, to put on my gloves, with which they were particularly amused. I sat with them some time, and it was with difficulty they tonsented to allow me to leave them at last—indeed, not till I had made them understand that my 'cowasjee' wanted me. Cowasjee's claims they seemed to understand completely, and, on my tejoining the gentlemen, if I were amused with their description of the tournament, you may conceive how astonished they were to learn that I had actually visited the harem. On the following morning I received. harem. On the following morning, I received an invitation in form, to repeat my visit, and I was conducted up a very handsome col-to her feet, richly trimmed with silver lace. All their hands and feet were died with henna, and they were much surprised to see mine of their natural colour. The furniture consisted principally of couches ranged around the toom, upon which they invited me to sit crass-legged, after their own mode, and seemed astonished at my preferring our European style. On the wall was a sentence of the Ko-ran framed and glazed, and in a recess was an illuminated Koran, which they showed me. My costume un lerwent the same minute exsed, and my shoes & stockings created univer-treated me with the createst deference and | Cam'lla determined to convince the respect, and, bringing me a little biby with gold rings in its nose and ears, with all a father's pride he informed me that it was his, ed me about my children and my ornaments, the two things always apparently foremost in an oriental imagination. My wedding-ring catching the eves of the women, I made them partly understand its signification, but they evidently seemed to consider it as a charm. Zaccara then taking my hand within very caressing air, invited me to accompany her, and she showed me all over the house. It was coming up a curtain, he introduced me into a pletely upstairs, downstairs, in my lady's small interior court, at the door of which were chamber,' and I saw a number of small rooms, front, and turbans very tastefully put on.

They received me with the utmost cordiality and delight, the principal lady, Zacceara, as I found she was called, making me sit down by her side, carelessly taking my hand, down by her side, carelessly taking my hand, and they exhibited to me all their ornaments and triakets. In return, I shewed them such as I had about one. My friend, the negro woman, poor black Zacchina, as she was called, was the only one Zacchina, as she was called, was the only one presenting me with a nostgay, &c. after taking my hand, previously tasting it, offered me coffee, which was brought on a silver tray, in the usual beautiful little chiua cups. It was, however, so performed that I could scarce-She did the honours, and appoint to the others in manners though I had met with neither the beauty of manners, which were perfectly soft and pleas- lish indeed had I not been gratified with their

They asked me where I came from, whether I had any ornaments, any children, &c. exhibiting theirs with great glee, They were amazingly struck with my costume, which they examined so minutely, that I began to think I should have had to undress to satisfy their curvicus; but whatmost amused them, was the circumstance of my gown fastening behind, which mystery, they examined over and over a gain; and some broad French tucks at the bottom seemed much to astonish them, as they seemed to be permitted to walk out together whenever they pleased; and once, as we were setting out for, and they were returning from a promenade, we met in the court. They were so carefully veiled, that I had some difficulty to recognise my friends of the harem agains but they affectionately seized my hand, and careasingly invited me to return with them to their apartments. All the gentlemen were with me, and I cannot help thinking that the Arabladies prolonged their interview purposely in order to have a better view of the Kringee cownsjees, my companions.

THE FRIEND.

*Where are you going, my dear Camilla?

Where are you going, my dear Comilla?! inquired Miss Harrowby, as she perceived her friend engaged in arraying her graceful figure in drapery well suited to its sylph-like beautoners. to drapery well suited to its ayinn-like beauty, if perceive you are bent on conquest? Only to take a walk with Mr. Fitz. Heary, auswered Camilla. I have promised to accompany him this afternoon. And are you company him this afternoon.' "And are you not aware, my sweet friend, that all the gossips' tongues are in motion, and that you and Mr. Fitz Henry have given them a subject' "I! what can they say of me—of us?" asked Camilla, with a reddening cheek—what can they say, my dear? replied her friend—why arrely you cannot be ignerant, my leve, of what they do say? "I am indeed' returned Camilla, 'and will thank you to enlighten me.' Of that I can readily do, my dearest sird, and and I was conducted up a very handsome col- Camma, and will mank you to enlighten me. I legiate looking staircase, near which was sta- a 6 that I can readily do, my dearest girl, and I Friend.

tioned the master of the house, apparently at his devotions, but evidently intending to have a furtive peep at me, without any being aware of his so doing.

I was now received in state in the interior apartments, and all the ladies were much more splendidly dressed than on the preceding evening. Zaccara had on handsome striped silk drawers, and a silk vest descending to her feet, richly tringined with silver lace. her words. 'Why then, my love,' replied her friend, 'they do say that you are terribly in love with Mr. Fitz Heavy; and pardon me Camilla—they say that you make your pen-chant sufficiently public—and—but I must not tell you the rest.' 'Tell all,' rejoined her friend—'What more do the gossips say?' gossips, but every body—even your best friends; but the worst of it is, they say that Mr. Fitz Henry never thought of you till your attachment for him was so plainly to be seen, An interesting looking young woman, seated and it is only his vanity that is gratified; and, in a low chair, was employed in making sil- in short, my sweet girl, they say you made the ver lace, the process of which she explained first ndvances—I don't believe a syllable of it to me, also its use to trim vests and turbans. myself, yet you know these things are very My costume un lerwent the same minute ex-amination as on the yesterday, and as this your being so fond of exhibiting you conquest, time I had on no cur, they were much struck and your being forever walking together, and with the manner in which my hair was dresal astonishment. Refreshments were brought, about every thing'-Enough!' exclaimed Cabut every thing was carefully tested before it milla-- y a have repeated enough---if Fitz was offered to me, I suppose to show me no Henry were here to hear this? --- But he has reachery was intended—and I was again interrogated as to my ornaments, children, &c.

They told me all their names, and enderand—. 'No more! Hortensia, you have told enough!' The indignant plance of Camilla's enough!' The indignant plance of Camilla's treachery was intended—and I was again in-terrogated as to my ornaments, children, &c. smiles at it, and looks as if it were true voured, but in vain, to accomplish mine. Suddenly there was a shrick of joy, laughing, and chapping of hands. They drew me quickly to the window, from whence I saw C —, walk check, convinced Hortensio that she had inthe window, from whence I saw C _____, walk-ing in the street, with one of his servants i deed told enough. And she saw Camilla lay holding an umbrella over his head, surroun i-aside her scarf and yell, and prepare for spended by an immense concourse of people; and ing the evening at home, with the exulting very foreign he certainly did look in the streets joy that demons are supposed to feel, when of Hodeida, with his English dress and hat they have inflicted a pang, and fixed a sting The delight of my fair, or rather of my dusky in the bosom of innocence. Other kind, officiends, was beyond description; but it was ficious friends corroborated Miss Harrowredoubled when they found it was my consider, by's statement, though not one of them be. The master of the house then came in; he lieved the tale they took delight in repeating her friends in particular, that she had not sunces' had nor come from her. Consequently she treated Fitz Henry with coolness in public, respoke of him to her friends in terms of indiffer-ence, calculated, in her esteem, to discredit their humiliating remarks. It was the error of vouth, the fault of a proud spirit, and bitterly did Camilla deplore her ill-judged conduct when she saw & felt its effects upon her lover.

and he returned her coolness with marked neglect, with apparent indifference, yet with writhing hearts, they met, and parted. Fitz Henry's distant bow was now ansyered by Camilla's half scornful glance. While her cheek, glowing with repressed emotion, and her eye, bright with the glance of woman's outraged pride, seemed to tell to her lover a tale of exulting coquetry, Camilla's heart was a proy to secret anguish, and her pillow was no stened by her tears. Hortonsia Harwho ventured to smell at my salts, and this rowby's first step in blasting happiness she did with so much eagerness, that the tears envied, had been successful beyond her hopes; success emboldened her, and her lures were set to entrap the heart of Fitz Henry, that her triumph over her dear friend' might be com-plete. His heart she could not gain, but her ly drink it. She did the honours, and appared with indical expressions of regards and peared as superior to the others in manners thangh I had not with neither the beauty of and address, as any English lady would be to her maid servants. Her figure was light and she maid servants. Her figure was light and she her maid servants. Her figure was light and she her his pleased with the simplicity, mirth and happiness, that apparently reigned in the Arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in appearance lively and intelligent, whilst her continued in the Arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in appearance with the arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in appearance with the arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in appearance with the arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in appearance with the arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in appearance with the arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in the Arab one; and I should have been churched his large was in the Arab one; and I should with the simplicity, mirth and happiness, that apparently reigned in the Arab one; and I should with the simplicity, mirth and happiness, that apparently reigned in the Arab one; and I should with the simplicity. mauners, which were perfectly soft and pleasing, were at the same time both affectionate and sprightly. The other women crowded round me with great empressment; by signs we kept up a very animated conversation, when we could not quite comprehend each other's meaning, we all laughed heartily.—
They asked me where I came from, whether I
They asked me where I came from, whether that any ornaments, any children, &c. exhibitsummate art is not always successful, and accident sometimes defeats the most deepby had retailed those invidious remarks of which she was the original author, and which had aroused the pride of Camilla, and led to the conduct which had alienated there lover.

The conduct which had alienated there lover. The girl repeated these remarks, and mentioned their source to Fitz Henry, and added her own comments, which signified that Camilla was doing vio-lence to her own feelings in order to save her pride, and that Miss Harrowhy had contrived pride, and that Miss Harrowhy had contrived the plan in the hope of rivilling her friend.' The lad repeated the tale—it reached the ears of a maiden aunt of Fitz Henry who hated Miss Harrowby and admired Camilla. The good lady, though single her self, approved of happy marriages, and detested scandal. She determined to sift the affair to the bottom; the result answered her affair to the bottom; the result answered her hopes, for she wrought herself into the confidence of Camilla and soon discovered the truth. No time was lost in making Fitz Henry acquainted with all the good lady knew. Fitz Henry's pleading heart conjured him to believe the tale in contradiction to his perhaps, too credulous eyes. Camilla's scornful glances might have been the effect of wounded pride, her heart might still be his he had suffered deeply in the confficts and he had too much good sense to permit him to throw away his own happiness and risque that of Camilla, while there was a chance of regaining it—his sought an explanation, and the result restored him to Camilla's confidence, and bronght peace and joy to her suffering heart. Shame and mortification were Miss Harrowby's reward, and Camilla had Ladies Literary Port Folie.

TEMPERANCE.

The following anecdote may have been in print five hundred times before, but we never saw it 'in all our vast reading,' and we think it might be read 'occasionally by some of our dyspeptics, who actually drink and eat themselves into dyspepsia.

A wealthy manufacturer from the west of Scotland, while at Edinburg on business called upon Dr. Gregory for his advice. He was a man of middle stature rather corpulent, with a rosy complexion and whose exterior a man of middle stature rather computers, with a rosy complexion and whose exterior altogether bespoke the comfortable liver. After seating himself the following dialogue ensued:—

Gentleman—Well, Dr. Gregory, I ha?

come up to Edinbro, in the way of business, and I just thought I would take your advice about my health.

Doctor .- Your health sir? What's the matter of you? Gent. I'm no just sae wheel i' the stomach as I'd like to be. Dr. The stomach! I suppose you are a

Dr. The stomach! I suppose you are a drunkard or a glutton then sir.

Gent. Na. Dr. Gregory, ye canna say that; ye main ten that I'm a sober man, and a temperate u.g. and a deacon of the kirk, as my worthy father was afore me.

Dr. Well, let us see: what do you eat and drink? what do you take for breakfast?

Gent. I take coffee or tea wi'toast, and a fresh egg or a bit o'salmon, though I have no much appetite for my breakfast.

Dr. Yes; and then you take something by way of lunch between breakfast and dinner?

Gent. I canna say I care ower much about the launch? but canftake a bit o'bread & cheese the launch? but cantiake a hit o'bread & cheese say I care ouer much about it.

Dr. Well, what do you eat for dinner? Gent. O! I'm no very particular though I maun say I like my dinner.

Dr. I suppose you take soup first?

Gent. Yes, I can say I like my soup.

Dr. And a glass of porter or brandy & wa-

Gent. Yee, I like a glass of someting wit Dr. And then you have fish or beef and mutton, with vegetables?

Gent. Yes,

Dr. And a glass of ale or porter with them.

Gent. Yes, I take a glass o'ale now and then wi'my meat.
Dr. And then you have boiled fowl and bacon, or something of that sort. I suppose:

Gent. Yes, I maun say I like a bit of fowl and bacon, now and then. Dr. And a glass of something with them: Fitz Henry's spirit was proud as her ewn. He silently accused her of caprice and levity.

Gent. Yes, Dr. And after the fowl you have pudding? Gent. I'm nave fond o' the pudding, but E can take a bit, if it be there. Dr. And you must drink wine with your pudding?

Gent. I canna take owermuch o' the wine, but if I have a friend wi'me, I take a glass or so. Dr. And then you have cheese or nuts? Gent. Yes—the guile wife is ower fond, o' them I canna say I care about them.

Dr. But you take a glass of wine or two with your nuts?

Gent. Yes, a glass or two.
Dr. Well, you do not finish your dinner without whiskey punch? Gent. I find my dinner sits better on my stomach with a little punch, as I take a glass or so. Dr. And have tca, I suppose? Gent. Yes, I maun take my tea wi' the gude wife.

Dr. And a bit of something with it?

Gent. Yes, I can take a bit o' something,

Dr. But you do not go to bed without sup-

Gent. O! a bit o' any little thing-bit o' samon, or boiled tongue, or cold low!

Dr. And a glass of something with it?

Gent. Yes.

Dr. And can you go to bed without a night cap of hot punch?

Gent I main say I sleep the better for a glass of hot punch, though I canna say I'm ower fond o' the habit.

ower fond o' the habit.

Dr. Well, Sir, you are a fine fellow; you are, indeed, a fine fellow. You come to me with a lie in your mouth, and tell me you are a sober man, and a temperate man, and a deacon of the kirk as your father was before you; con of the kirk as your father was before your and you make yourself out, by your own statement to be a glutton, and a wine bibber, and a whiskey tippler and a beer swiller, and a drinker of that abomniable of all compositions, called punch. Go home, Sir, and reform yourself, and become temperate in your eating and drinking, and you will have no need of my advice.

HANDSOME REWARD.

A Clergyman in the West, who had unfor-tunately quarrelled with his parishioners, had the misfortune to have a shirt stolen from the the mistortine to have a smrt stolen from the hedge where it hung to dry, and he posted handbile offering a reward for the discovery of the offender. Next morning was written at the feet of the copy posted against the church door—

Bome thief has stolen the person's shirt,

To akin naught could be nearer—

The parish will give five hourded pounda

To him that steals the wearer.